ALFRED SWAN TO TALK ON "RUSSIAN MUSIC"

Alfred Swan will lecture on "Russian Music" in the chapel on Friday night, March 9th.

Mr. Swan, an eminent author, lecturer, and violinist, was born of English parents in St. Petersburg, Russia, in 1890. There he studied violin with Leopold Lange and later in England with an equally famous teacher. A legal education, in accordance with his father's wish was procured at Exeter College, Oxford. He soon abandoned this and returned to Russia to study music. At the Imperial Conservatory in St. Petersburg, Mr. Swan gained Mr. knowledge of music form and history.

This study was interrupted by the war and revolution. He engaged in relief work with the American Red Cross in Siberia. He arrived in England in 1920 by way of the Far East and America.

In London, in 1920, Mr. Swan gained his enviable reputation as a lecturer on music. In 1921 he was invited to the University of Virginia as an assistant professor of Music. It was at Sweet Briar that Mr. Swan wrote his well-known book on "Sensibility."

Since 1923, Mr. Swan has been lecturing in New York. He has given lectures in the best schools and colleges in the United States. Everywhere he has been praised, enjoyed and appreciated. He is considered "the highest living authority on Russian Music."

Miss Dutton Attends Annual Meeting of N.A.D.W.

On Sunday, March 4th, Dean Dutton returned from Boston where she attended the annual meeting of the National Association of Deans of Women.

Miss Dutton stopped at the Women's University Club in New York, on her way to and from Boston.

SWEET BRIAR BOWS TO WESTHAMPTON

The Sweet Briar - Westhampton basketball game was called at 3:30 Saturday afternoon. Tommy Claybrook scored a goal in the first few minutes of play. Richardson soon got going for Westhampton and the score at the end of the first quarter was Sweet Briar 4, Westhampton 9.

Personne Whitaker went in for Polly McDiarmid in the second quarter. The score at the end of the half was 13-7.

During the third quarter Westhampton ran their score up, and then, as throughout the game, Richardson played beautifully. Her shots were accurate, and passing excellent, and she played consistently.

Agnes Sproul went in for Polly Swift during the last quarter. Westhampton's guards were splendid and stayed so close to the Sweet Briar forwards that they got few, if any, clear shots at the basket. The final score was 13-12.

Westhampton's team surpassed Sweet Briar in speed and accuracy, although several times Sweet Briar surprised her opponents by a streak of exceptionally wise and effective passing. Excellent defense work was done by Virginia Taylor, and Huldah Williams played in her usual good form.

The line-up was as follows:

Sweet Briar:
C. — Copeland
C. — Taylor
F. — Claybrook
F. — McDiarmid

SENIOR WEEK.

For four years the class of '28 has shared the smiles and tears at Sweet Briar. For four years we have been "experimented on" by having age old traditions moved. For four years we have supported the calls for loyalty, and this fourth year we have given more per capita than any other class because of the ideal we carry in our hearts. We have made a request for one last week, seven days that classes have had from the beginning of the school up to the time we began to be experienced on our year. Seven days of happiness, of time to catch up the loose ends of the years work, of comradeship and friendship ties made firmer, of memories to carry out and pass on. Yet this one request is refused. Exams are to be put up the last minute—the last week is to be a hectic rushing anxious time filled with sheer exhaustion, and we leave feeling the walls we have contributed to are mere walls, not ideals. Our four years have made no impression—we are given no consideration—we are treated as children who are being refused candy. Why? "It is only an experiment." Perhaps—but one that hurts, not those who refuse, but those who are refused.

—CLASS OF '28.

"THE COLLEGE SAP."

This was the astounding title of an article in a recent periodical in which the "sap" was defined as the person who leaves college with a few predigested facts; in short, an intellectual snob, who is otherwise, mentally, as he is four years earlier. Such people have come to college with the idea of thus gaining social or business preferment or, worse still, they have come just because they have been sent by proud parents and have no other reason for being in school. We hope that if any of us here at Sweet Briar came because "it was the thing to do," that she has caught the real spirit of study and no longer belongs in this category.

Education in a liberal arts college should be a means of developing the power to think for one's self and hence to be able to formulate a philosophy of life. And real thinking calls for more than a hasty, superficial, over-night, memory exercise. One has to go at it in a professional attitude with the purpose of getting the fundamental truth out of the mere "fact." It is this kind of comprehension that leads to wiser and deeper knowledge. Many of our big Universities are offering to Freshmen, classes in orientation to help them to associate history with English and Math with Zoö, etc. This should not be necessary. "Honest to goodness" thought on the part of an individual will give a much stronger grasp than any further "pouring in" from an outside force could do.

We think it might be interesting to the author of this recent article to know that in Dr. Folsom's latest statistics, eighty-five per cent of his class agreed that "recognition" was preferably attained through grades. Marks aren't anything, but after all, they are a standard. We feel that if this percentage be representative of the college, then Sweet Briar is not terribly affected with "College Saps." We wonder in which of these two classes we'd put ourselves if we stopped to think. Try it sometime and see!

THE VICTORY OF DEFEAT.

— In view of our team having lost both outside games in basketball this season we would like to say that it is not always the team that comes out ahead in score which is the best team. There is something of worth to note that undaunted in spirit, with the joy of the game in their hearts, our team played with the best that was in them, and with the spirit that would be well to follow, not only in games but in other phases of our lives. Through the experience of defeat we often gain more of victory than those who to the eyes of the world seem victors.

College Girls Would Marry But Do Not Find Right Men

The following article quoted from the New York Times should be comforting to certain statisticians. "Failure to meet the right man is the chief cause of spinsterhood among educated women, says Dr. Katherine Bement Davis, for ten years Secretary of the New York Bureau of Social Hygiene. She has just completed a survey of the situation, the result of which will be published in the forthcoming Harper's, under the title 'Why They Failed to Marry.'"

"Women are not less attractive because of their college education, Dr. Davis maintains emphatically. Desire for a career deterred only 2 per cent. from taking husbands, she learned, while less than 1 per cent. preferred 'freedom' to marriage. Miss Davis bases her findings on replies to questionnaires sent 1,200 college women. The returns were anonymous, so that the individuals answering would not be restrained by embarrassment.

"Never met the right man" was the answer that accounted for more than 28 per cent. of the spinsters. As proof that college women do not lack attractiveness, Dr. Davis announces that only one in twenty definitely said she never had an offer of marriage, and that more than a third had been engaged or were engaged at the time of the report.

"Lack of social opportunities to meet men was said to have been the lot of only a very few. Reasons noted on the questionnaires for not marrying include the following:

"In love with a man I could not marry," 9 per cent. "Never in love with any man," 8 per cent. "Lack of opportunity to meet men," 4.8 per cent. "Too shy—not attractive to men," 2 per cent. "Never loved men who asked and men I loved never asked," 1.9 per cent. "Marriage never appealed to me," 1.6 per cent. "Fear of child-bearing," 2 per cent.

"Eighteen per cent of the women declared that they would not marry under any circumstances. Sixty-eight per cent. of them regretted unequivocally their single state, and the remaining 14 per cent. were undecided."

Vote always and vote wisely!

THE STORY OF "THE LITTLE HOUSE."

When the fondest wish of Mrs. Williams was realized, and the collection for the Tea-House. It was the character of There was the vigorous afternoon the "Little House" changed with experience, foot or horseback, with the changed character of the estate, or, or tennis racquet; the raven. One could hardly recognize it as our young aristocrat residing there. The outside of the building was all white, till six o'clock dinner. There rested somewhat, and inside it was the commissary, smiled on by the fitted up as a tiny infirmary for students and frowned on by the contagious cases. Modern plumbing physician; with its state of the was introduced, and a simple hand-candy of uncertain ancestry; with hospital equipment, while modern pill-its one tin cup, which served strange antrophy was quite outdone by the concoctions called "soft drinks," great bushes of syringas and of Japan, and which passed from lip to lip none quince" that nodded at the in true loving-cup fashion. There were the Domestic Science Department with scientific views of nutrition and sympathetic views of youth.

But in spite of all these inducements no patients appeared. So the "Little House" adopted itself again last but not least was an academic to the growing needs of the college, motive. The Tea-House should be the music department overflowed its instrumental in developing higher boundaries. Pianos were brought in education. This was the plan: The and the passers-by heard music—"Little House," in its new capacity, or, at least, music in the making—should sell "cakes and ale" (home-issuing from—industrious fingers, made cake and unimpeachable gin. The next year brought new buildings (per ale) to the students, and the and new music rooms, but no new proceeds were to be found a scholarship; it looked as if the "Little ship at college. The "Little House" House" was to stand idle. Then was to experience another magic came the Tea-House plan! enchantment.

Athletic Notes

Hounds Win Paper Chase. Twelve Girls Pass "B" Riding Test.

At three o'clock, Friday, the riders for the Paper Chase assembled at the Tea House. After a quick start, they were herded into the A. A. office until the Hares should have made their get-away.

Allowing the Hares ten minutes start, the Hounds dashed out to mount in hot pursuit, but they were thwarted by several "blinds" at the very beginning. Having solved the question as to which was the right trail by sending a rider down each "blind," they rode back of college, into the woods back of Faculty row, through Faculty row, and down towards the dairy.

The trail led them out past the Monument, almost to Faulkners, sharp to the right, through Mrs. Wallis', out on the Mission road, then back-trail to the Monument, although the Hares went over Paul's Mountain and intended orchard to the lake and up through the woods by Mr. Beard's, back to the Tea House.

The Hounds went astray many times but the first of them, were successful in getting back to college eight minutes after the Hares, thus winning by two minutes, because of the ten minutes start allowed to the Hares.

There were one or two logs to be hopped over and much excitement issued at the start as any one knows who went. The Hares got a thrill when they caught sight of their pursuers in the valley below, while they were on the summit of Paul's Mt. They remained unsaddled, however, although 'if the Hounds had been fortunate enough to catch sight of them, they could have cut across, according to the rules.

First Teams to Play For Championship Monday

Although the close of the basketball season is drawing near and our last outside game has been played, there are several class and inter-class games to be played in the near future.

The games for the class championship will be played by the first teams of each class on next Monday, March 12th.

The recent weather makes us think of track tennis, archery, lacrosse and lake. They will all start after spring vacation.

Those who passed the "B" riding test are:

Dorothy Bridges
Josephine Gibbs
Alice Barrows
Elizabeth Maner
Frances O'Brian
Virginia Quintard
Natalie Roberts
Ruth Schott
Mary Swift
Rena Tyroler
Peronne Whittaker
Marjorie Sturges

Some "B's" were withheld because the leaders did not know the girls' riding well enough. These girls will not have to re-take the test but will have their names brought up in the Riding Council again, later.

Others who received "C's" on the practical test will have to take it again next fall.

Dancing Recital Will Be Given Tuesday Night.

Texas Independence Day Celebrated By Dinner

Ten loyal Texans gathered at Mrs. Wills in Ambros last week to celebrate the Independence of their glorious state with a dinner party.

The party included:
Fern and Cynthia Tanner
Claire Giesecke
Eleanor Marshall
Alice L. Perkins
Anne Beth Price
Marie Rogers
Margaret Terrell
Emily Zachry
Dr. Dora N. Raymond

Elise and Sarah Jeter were unable to attend on account of illness. For several years March 2nd has been celebrated at Sweet Briar. Last year it was decided at such a meeting that a Texas club should be formed. The chief aim is to enable the Texas girls, who necessarily come from such a great distance, to meet and know each other. The incoming Texas Freshmen are visited at the beginning of the year, and efforts are made to make these girls feel at home in those first few weeks when everything is so new and strange.

Claire Giesecke was elected president for next year. Anne Beth Price, ex-president, as representative of the club, extends Claire congratulations and feels sure that she will make an excellent president.

The NEWS requests that the Alumnae express their ideas on the subject of Sweet Briar Senior Week through the Open Letter column.

Janet Harris is recovering from flu and pneumonia very rapidly.

Elise Jeter, who is recovering from scarlet fever, is much better.

In general, Dr. Harley wants to warn the girls against the warm days and the cool nights, and to remind them that they have to be wound up to go until the sixth of April. She would like to have them keep as well as possible, because she wants to get at her gardening. She sees signs of their improved health already, in office attendance, and in the infirmary. The holiday last week did them lots of good. "A merry heart doeth good like a medicine."

Mussolini Warns Austria on Tyrol Question.

On March 3rd Premier Mussolini made a vigorous defense of the Fascist regime's policy in the Italian Tyrol, and clearly retailed Italian position that administration of the district is a matter of internal policy, in which interference by foreign governments would be intolerable.

This reference to foreign interference was especially applicable to the Sacco-Vanzetti case. Despite widespread movements in behalf of these two Italians on the part of foreign citizens, Governor Fuller of Massachusetts refused to help them from execution.

Mussolini has threatened to suppress German newspapers in the province of Bolzano unless the anti-Italian campaign is discontinued. In this regard, Mussolini said: "It is time to declare insolent speeches have only one result—to accelerate the turning of the fascists into two open an abyss—between the two neighboring peoples. As much as it is in our power, we wish to be friends of the German world . . . but only on one condition, that our safety, namely the safety of 12,000,000 Italians should not be put even vaguely in question."

The Premier ridiculed the plan for solution by the League, and added that if Geneva "entered such a labyrinth, it would never succeed or emerge."

Union Members Plan to Vote Tuesday on Strike if Arbitration is Rejected.

In regard to the strike which the Interborough-Rapid Transit Co. is now faced, word that the Union has offered terms of arbitration to the effect that the causes of the twenty-one men suspended by the company either be referred to Mayor Walker or the Transit Commission.

The fact that the company has kept nearly 2000 strike-breakers for service if a strike is called, leads the Union to believe that their terms will be rejected.

According to the I. R. T. these 21 men were suspended because of vile language used, while the Union asserts that the cause was their membership in the Union.

The strike-breakers who are "standing by" are leading a life of comparative luxury, eating I. R. T. food and smoking I. R. T. cigarettes. Though they are granted leaves of absence, practically all of them return.

Mr. James S. Doyle, who is in charge of the recruiting, says that never since 1904 has he found the market so crowded with men waiting for jobs. He asserts that in case of strike he can double his army within five hours. These men are receiving $4.89 a day, and sleep perfectly contented.

Gov. Byrd Doesn't Want Salary Boost.

Richmond, Va., March 5 (AP)—Governor Harry F. Byrd holds that an elective officer should serve throughout his term at the salary applying when he was elected, he stated in a letter today to Senator W. A. Garrett, chairman of the finance committee.

The letter follows: "I notice that a bill is pending before your committee increasing the salary of the governor. Without expressing an opinion either for or against this measure, I would appreciate your kindness in having it amended so that it will be made clear by its terms that any increase the General Assembly may deem wise to make, will not be operative during my term of office. "I make this suggestion as I believe an elective officer should always serve his election term at the same salary applying at the time of his election."

Miss Clark Speaks On League Of Women Voters

Miss Adele Clark, Vice-President of the League of Women Voters, spoke on the League of Women Voters at Convention on Friday.

Miss Clark spoke of the Eighth Annual Convention of the League and expressed a desire that Sweet Briar might be represented at its meetings in Chicago.

She told of women's entrance into public, her struggles and final gain of the suffrage in 1920, and of her present-day influence in supervising and considering public and governmental matters.

Miss Clark's interesting talk was interrupted by the bell. She clearly and convincingly set forth the value of the League of Women Voters and the part it will play in the approaching Presidential election.

Allerton House Of Chicago Made Intercollegiate Hotel

A nationwide effort to bring alumni of colleges and universities into closer contact has brought the appointment or designation of hotels in all the principal cities of the country as centers of Alumni activities, says officers of the Intercollegiate Alumni Extension Service, the operating head of this organization comprised of alumni secretaries and editors of college publications of more than one hundred educational institutions.

The most recent selection of another hotel as an intercollegiate alumni meeting place was that of the Allerton House, Chicago, which is now designated as an intercollegiate alumni hotel.

The aim of the extension service has been to promote the welfare of its members in all possible ways, and as a part of that program designation of hotels resulted from a belief that they would be centers for former collegians who have few facilities for carrying out the friendships formed in college years. The designation of the Allerton House will be an aid to alumni passing through Chicago who wish to renew contacts with former classmates, it is believed.

Full records and directories of all local alumni groups will be kept on file at the Allerton House and will be available to alumni residents of Chicago and those visiting here, it is announced. Thus far there have been 40 hotels in the United States designated as intercollegiate alumni headquarters.
